

Business Valuations and Calculations

Business owners and entrepreneurs depend upon our team for assistance with these important reports, and our appraisers work closely with attorneys and other professionals during the valuation or calculation process.

About Valuations

A business valuation is a broad-ranging process that synthesizes many different sizes of quantitative and qualitative information to determine the value of a company. The valuation process includes developing a comprehensive understanding of the business, analyzing the industry and current economic conditions, utilizing a CPA's understanding of historic and projected financial data, and determining the most appropriate valuation methods. This culminates in a valuation analysis report in which the appraiser expresses an unambiguous opinion of value.

About Calculations

A business calculation is a process that provides an approximate value indication or range of value for a privately held company. While many of the principles and procedures used in a valuation are applied, the scope of a business calculation, which is presented in a more condensed letter format, is not as in-depth or comprehensive.
